“TYING THE KNOT”

I never had given much thought to the expression “Tie the Knot” during the first 40 years of my preaching career and performing several hundred weddings. However, that changed with a wedding I performed at Woodstock, GA. If I remember correctly, it was a wedding of a couple from the Philippines. As you can imagine there was a bit of communication problems, but we did pretty good. For some reason they wanted their wedding in English (I’m not sure why they selected me). In the weeks prior to the wedding there were several meetings with the couple making plans and premarital counseling. The night of the rehearsal things were going quite well until an older lady, who turned out to be the grandmother of the bride, spoke up, “Where is the rope?” she asked.

“The rope?” I asked, while wondering who she was planning on hanging. “Yes, the rope”, she replied. As if on cue a couple of the guys ran outside and in a few minutes came back with a beautiful rope with tassels on each end and handed it to me. I suppose my bewildered look was easily translated so one of the persons, who spoke English very well came to my rescue with an explanation. Just before the pronouncement of husband and wife, the couple would kneel before me and the best man and maid of honor would put the rope around them and I would, “Tie the Knot”. It made sense to me and I wondered why we don’t do that as it was a beautiful symbol. However, that was the first and last time I did that and it was twenty years ago. In all probability I will never do it again.

I performed another ceremony for a Spanish couple. She is bi-lingual and he is able to communicate quite well, probably understands better than he speaks. Although the audience was primarily Spanish speaking, they did not want it translated. I thought it went quite well.

I have no idea how many marriages I have performed in almost 60 years of preaching, but it has to be several hundred. When I lived in Springfield, TN there was still the requirement for blood test and it was a border town. There was a waiting period in nearby Kentucky, just a few miles to the north and a doctor in Springfield would give the blood test within a few hours and the courthouse was just across the street to obtain the license. While many of the marriages were performed by a retired judge, my office was just two blocks away and many of the couples would come there to be married.

I had some interesting experiences during those years. A couple came to the office one evening just after five o’clock requesting my services as a minister to perform their wedding. After a brief counseling period, I asked them for their license and was told they had none. I explained to them without a license,

I would be unable to marry them. “We thought the church could give a license”, they replied. Once again I explained the legal procedure to them and it would be Monday before they could get their license. “We are from out of town what are we going to do until then?”, they asked. I probably didn’t realize how it may have sounded to them at the time, but I responded, “I guess you will have to do what you have been doing”.

Although I did not live near the church building folk found me in the evenings and on the weekends. One evening the doorbell rang and when I answered there was a couple standing on the front porch. “Are you a man of the cloth?” the young man answered. Although, I don’t normally refer to myself as such, I knew what he meant, so I said, “Yes”. He then said, “I told my fiancée, if we could find a man of the cloth, he would marry us free”. All I could say was, “Come on in”.

In this issue I have found a few weddings of various family members to publish. I would like to do more, so anytime there is a wedding in your family please let me know. -Leroy

JAYCEE MARKS & BOBBY DEDMON

I found the following story interesting. -Leroy

OUR STORY

How We Met

First off...I always said I would never date Bobby Dedmon. He was Trevor's best friend, and I never wanted to come between their friendship! Now, over 5 years later, we are getting married!

I will never forget our first summer together. Trevor invited him to join us on our annual family beach trip. After a few days, it was like we were old friends. Everybody laughs about how he was head over heels for me then, and I was completely oblivious. A few months later, I decided I would give him a chance. I literally remember telling my parents that we were "going to try dating, but I really didn't think he was boyfriend material." We have been inseparable ever since!

Together, we have graduated high school, endured nursing school, started our first jobs, went on numerous vacations, and now we are building a home together. We have made so many memories in the last 5 years, and we absolutely cannot wait to see what the future holds for us!

We're Engaged!

We planned a cruise with our best friends, Matthew & Alayna. We left out of Jacksonville, FL on October 16th. We had just celebrated our 5th anniversary on the 11th, and little did I know what was about to happen! Shortly after the boat left the port, we decided to go up on the top deck so we could see and take some pictures. Alayna had her professional camera and we wanted to take advantage of the views! Bobby and I were looking off the side of the ship, and apparently I was in a daze, because the next thing I knew, I turned around and Bobby was down on one knee! Of course, I cried, but not before I asked him if he was serious about 10 times! Finally, he said, "Jaycee, are you going to say yes or not?!?!" The best part, we will forever have picture memories of that special moment! Alayna had captured the entire event on camera while Matt recorded it on video!

Of course, everyone in our families knew Bobby was going to propose. His mom, Justina, even sent Alayna on the cruise with a memory card and scotch tape. The ring was way too big, but Bobby didn't want to get it sized without me there. So after the proposal, Alayna used the tape to try and make the band thicker! During one of our stops in the Bahamas, I was finally able to get enough service to send our moms a picture of the ring. They promised to keep it a secret until we got home and we were able to make the "official" announcement. I literally got texts from everyone the entire way home asking, "How much longer?" because they were dying to share the exciting news!

Our Wedding

The Ceremony and Reception was at the Langtree Plantation, 554 Langtree Road, Mooresville, NC. The Historic Plantation House at Langtree was constructed near the end of the Civil War by Dr. Henry Yeoman Mott. Dr. Mott, as he was so familiarly known, was a true type of the old-time southern gentleman, a manly, erect figure, a man loved and honored by all who knew him. Henry Yeoman Mott, then a young man of 20 years, entered the Confederate army as a cavalry private at the outbreak of the Civil War. He was known as a gallant and courageous soldier, serving throughout the entire four years of the war, carrying his commission in his pocket and serving in the cavalry ranks as a soldier instead of an officer. For a while he was aide to General D. H. Hill. Just after the war, Dr. Mott married Miss Roxana Smith, of Lincoln county. His wife was a member of a prominent family of Lincoln county. Her father was the director of the Little Mountain Iron Works of the Confederate government, an important unit during the war. Dr. Mott attended Jefferson Medical College, in Philadelphia, after the war. His two older brothers had been graduated from this institution. After his graduation, Dr. Mott returned to his home to take up the practice of medicine. He became one of the outstanding physicians of this section. His practice extended over Lincoln and Iredell counties and over part of northern Mecklenburg county. -Jaycee

PRESSNELL FAMILY LEAVES TENNIS LEGACY AT AUSTIN

By David Elwell Sports Writer

April 27, 2016

It started simply with an older brother wanting to spend time with his younger brother. No one could have imagined Nicky Pressnell taking his younger brother LaRon to the local tennis courts could have fueled a family passion now into its third generation at Austin.

“I was reading a story the other day about a $1 million trip,” Nicky said. “When you consider what tennis has meant to my family as far as scholarships and jobs, it might have been a $1 million trip that day.” LaRon was so good in his four years at Austin High that he was named an All-American his senior year in 1979. He played in college at Freed-Hardeman University. Later he was tennis coach and athletic director at the Henderson, Tennessee, school. Today, when he’s not working as a loan originator for First Federal in Athens, he usually can be found giving lessons at Canebrake Country Club.

Chris Pressnell, Nicky’s son, teamed with his cousin Scott Shirley to help give Austin a tennis state championship in 1989. Shirley’s mother, Pat, is Nicky’s sister. Both Chris and Scott played in college. Chris played at UNA and Scott played at UAH. Chris preaches at the Flint Church of Christ.

THE PRESSNELL FAMILY (L-R) LARON, NICKY, CHRIS AND CADE
Chris is married to Tera Janay Broome, the daughter of Terry Lamar and Kathy Gail McNally Broom. Terry’s great grandmother, was Caroline Caldonia "Callie" Dedmon.

He is also the tennis pro at Burningtrees Country Club and has been volunteer assistant at Austin for two years. Cade Pressnell is Chris’ son. The Austin senior is competing in the 6A state tournament Thursday. Last year, he advanced to the state finals at No. 1 singles. He and No. 1 doubles teammate John Maze also will be competing for a state championship. Cade is scheduled to sign with Wallace State Community College in Hanceville on May 11. Other members of the family have made their mark in athletics at Austin in volleyball, football, baseball and gymnastics. LaRon showed promise. “I don’t remember what year it was, but I know we had never played tennis,” Nicky said. “I think I bought some cheap rackets somewhere. I do remember LaRon showed some ability that day. After playing three or four times, he was really doing well. By the time he got to high school, he was the best around.” The tennis might have ended right there if LaRon had not been paying attention to the announcements at Austin during his freshman year. “I heard them say that tennis tryouts were that day,” LaRon said. “I thought I would give it a try. I didn’t really start getting serious about tennis until I was in like the eighth grade.”

In his four years at Austin, LaRon posted a 64-5 record that included four Tennessee Valley Conference Tournament championships. He advanced to the state tournament finals his senior year in 1979. “I was up 6-0, 6-1 in the finals and lost because of cramps,” LaRon said. Nicky, who preaches at the Neel Church of Christ, is 12 years older than LaRon. Chris is 12 years younger than LaRon. Chris remembers seeing his uncle play. “I’m not saying I played tennis because of LaRon, but he certainly had an impact,” Chris said. “We would have family gatherings at Austinville Park. He would be hitting at the tennis courts. He was really good. He still is today. If he had started as young as they do now, there’s no telling how good he could have been.” Chris said he started throwing tennis balls at Cade when he was as young as 3. “I told Chris that if Cade can survive his dad, he could be pretty good,” Nicky said. Just because Cade is playing his last match for Austin this week doesn’t mean the Pressnell influence on Austin tennis will end. Chris hopes to continue helping with the team. “If it works out, it is certainly something I want to continue doing,” Chris said. “It’s been a lot of fun being a part of Austin tennis.”
