I GUESS I AM DOING OK FOR AN OCTOGENARIAN

One of the questions I seem to hear the most is, "How are you today?" Everytime I go to the doctor, I hear this question so I usually say, "I don't know, so I hope you will tell me in a few minutes"... Of course, the truth of the matter is that I don't know how an 83 year old is supposed to feel. I have never been this old before. I had a good birthday on June 27 as it began that morning with my two brothers knocking on the door, then shortly after my good friends, Bill and Wendy Williams from Tullahoma, TN showed up. I found out later the four of them had pre arranged that activity. They took me to lunch and Wendy, who is a master at crocheting, had knitted me a crown and I was crowned, "King for a Day". Later in the day Gwen and Carrie along with their family members had my party. It does a fella good to at least believe someone cares about you and I think they do.

On August 8, I had another sleep study done as my CPap has been acting up and I can't get a new one without the study as it has been over 20 years since my last one. Gary and Diane came down to spend the night with Jane while I was away and spent the week with us. It was good for them to do and I really enjoyed their visit. I left Gary in Springfield, TN, when I moved to Georgia in 1985 and we really miss being with them and their family. They are the parents of my two grandsons, Greg and Jonathan and the grandparents of two of our great grandsons, Brady and Carson. Diane recently retired from TriStar NorthCrest Medical Center, where she had been employed as a Social Worker for about 25 years. This picture was taken at her Retirement Party. (Front Row L-R) Brady and Carson. (Back Row L-R) Michele, Jonathan, Diane, Gary, Courtney and Greg. They all have been to see us this year and we always have a great time.

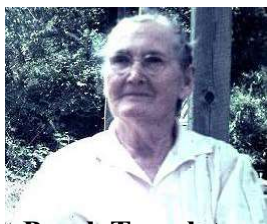

DESCENDENTS OF PEARL TEMPLETON AND GEORGE DICKSON

My maternal grandfather, George Hickman Dickson (1885-1918), was a Dedmon descendent. His grandmother was Mary Hannah Dedmon (1817-1887) and she married David McCarter (McAuthor) Dickson (1821-1914) on June 07, 1850. George married Pearl Victoria Templeton (1889-1972) and they had two daughters, Ruby Viola Dickson (1912-2008) and Edna Frances Dickson (1913-1989). Edna Married Malen Leonard Gilbert (1913-1947) about 1934. They had five children, James Eldon (JE), Tommy Llyod, Frances Marie, Rober Gerald and Evelyn Juanita. (JE and Robert are deceased). Ruby married Gordon Lee Dedmon (1918-2002) on July 21, 1938. They also had five children, George Leroy (yours truly), Alice Carolyn, Alma Ruth, Thomas Gordon and Joseph William (Bill). Carolyn is deceased. Each year for about the past ten years we have gotten together on the second Saturday in September (except 2020).

My grandmother married a few years after the death of my grandfather to Olan Alvin Vess (1898-1997) in August 1927. He was the only grandfather I really knew

Malen and Edna Gilbert

Olan Vess had been married to Dovie Mae McClure (1905-1926) and they had three girls, Dorothy Vess (1922-2017), Blanch Virginia Vess (1924-1924), and Ola Lee Vess (1925-2012). Olan and Pearl had two children, Mary Ruth Vess (1928-2016) and Peggy Vess (1930). It was just too confusing to us children to remember who was step and who was half, so we were all just grandchildren, nephews, neices and cousins.

Another twist in the web of kinship is that Sarah Rachel Dickson, the daughter of John and Rosa Dickson and sister of my grandfather had a daughter, Maybell Black, who married Elgin Templeton, the brother of my grandmother, Pearl Templeton..

During Jesse Deadman's lifetime he witnessed many changes as America was being established, He lived in a time where changes were being made in order to make this country what it is today. In the 1838, President Jackson called for all the Native Americans to be forced off their own land. As the Cherokee were forced out of North Carolina many of them hid in the mountains of North Carolina. Many other Cherokee people were forcibly moved from their homeland and relocated to Indian Territory, now Oklahoma. They resisted their removal by creating their own newspaper, The Cherokee Phoenix, as a platform for their views. They sent their educated young men on speaking tours throughout the United States. They lobbied Congress, and created a petition with more than 15,000 Cherokee signatures against removal. They took their case to the U.S. Supreme Court, which ruled that they were a sovereign nation in Worcester vs. Georgia (1832). President Andrew Jackson ignored the Supreme Court decision, enforced his Indian Removal Act of 1830, and pushed through the Treaty of New Echota. In 1838 Cherokee people were forcibly taken from their homes, incarcerated in stockades, forced to walk more than a thousand miles, and removed to Indian Territory, Oklahoma. On January 1, 1863, Lincoln issued the final Emancipation Proclamation, which declared "that all persons held as slaves are, and henceforward shall be free." Jesse Deadman passed away March 2, 1863, just days after President Lincoln's famous speech.

It would be Jesse's son Daniel Martin Dedman who changed the spelling of his last name after leaving N.C. and arriving in Sweet Springs, MO..

Jesse Deadman is my Gr. gr. gr. Grandfather.

As a 45-year Genealogist I have found many documents, certificates and articles. I have been to many places throughout the United States. This is one place for me however that really gave me my "aww struck" moment. It was the day when I found the place where "I had no words". All I could do was walk and just look around, look at all the "names". To me, I struck GOLD that day. I found family I had been searching for. To find so many in one place, at one time is what left me with no words. I still to this day couldn't tell you how I was feeling on that day. I had finally found a Cemetery with numerous family members within it. It wasn't until after I got home -long after- that I could finally put that day to words....

ABBOTTS CREEK CEMETERY

As I sit here looking upon your headstones, I can only wonder what it was like when you were alive. Did you have a hard life, were you happy? When you died, family and friends dressed in dark colored clothing gathered to say "Good bye". Flowers of many colors with ribbons attached are set upon the graves. Were hearts grieving as prayers are said and songs are sung? Were the ladies' hankies wet with water as the tears fell from the cheeks? Did many hats tilt for you as the men walked away?

Days and perhaps weeks go by and they come back again to say "Hello" for a few moments only to say "Good -bye" again. Then your visitor goes home. As time passes the visits get fewer and fewer, to become no visits at all. You may think you have been left behind as generations pass you by. Weather and time are putting marks upon your headstones. Some of you are breaking, some have fallen to the ground from where they once stood. Some are leaning, some have sunk into the ground. Though they are dirty and covered with moss, some are still standing tall. You thought you were forgotten, but you weren't. Even after so many generations, your names are written down in families bibles, your children's names too. Even your grandchildren can be found in many books. You are written about in family journals too. I wish I could read some of those, to read about the way you lived back then and how you worked. How you played, what school was like. What your Sundays were like. I have no old journals, so all I can do is look at these headstones and let my imagination take me to the 1700's and 1800's .

I want you to know you are also included in many family trees including my own. All of your descendants are far too many to count. Many are piecing together "your story", in a way that it makes you all come to life again. So, you see, you are not forgotten. Your stories are cherished. As I sit here looking at all these headstones, many you can't read at all anymore. What happens with those you can't read? I wonder how future generations will find you? I hope they find you just like I did. I know others will come looking, I won't be the last. Yes, I came looking for you.

You don't know me, but I know you. I'm your 8x's Granddaughter. And I'm your 7x's Granddaughter. And I'm your 6x's Granddaughter. And 6x-7x-8x Grandniece to all of you. The rest of you, you are my cousins. I have to go now, but I will be back to visit you again.

You may be asking yourself "Why was she so "Aww struck". People find cemeteries every day, right? This is very true. Researchers with a few dollars to spend do travel to find cemeteries every day. Let me tell you a little bit of my own story now if I may.

I was born in Montana and became interested in Genealogy when I was about 19 years old and did not have a few dollars to spare.

My husband was in the military so I have lived in a few places. Let's face it, unless you've been associated with the military you don't usually leave the place your born in. Call it fate, call it what you will. Was it meant to be? Was I supposed to find the cemetery? Was I supposed to come full circle? I am now living in the state where several "different lines" of my family migrated to back in the late 1600's! Abbotts Creek Cemetery is in High Point N.C. less than 2 hours from where I live. Only back then it was called "Browntown". To me, it was fate, I have come "Full Circle". I was meant to be here.
