LEAVING A LEGACY

When my good friend Jim Dearman, the host of the television program, “Good News Today”, asked me to do a five minute segment called “Leaving a Legacy”, my first thought was what can I leave anyone. After pondering on the idea a few days, I decided maybe I could leave to others what was left to me. In the poem, Ulysses, Alfred Lord Tennyson said, “I am a part of all that I have met.” I suppose most of us can make that statement. Often our subconscious picks up on things we see in others and shows in our actions. If you doubt this, just go out to the Little League Baseball field and watch the youngsters. You can tell by the way they swing the bat, throw the glove, spit and yes, scratch, who their favorite major league baseball player is. I have a collection of 1000 to 1500 sermons on file, that I have prepared over the last 50+ years. While there is some originality in most of them, I have to admit that the basic outline was gleaned from other preachers in some cases. Of course, I try to adapt and put into each sermon my own personality and thoughts. With that in mind the least one can do is pass on what was passed to him.

Actually, when I began this little family research project, I had in mind to leave my children and grandchildren a better knowledge of who we are as a family than I knew growing up. I still find it hard to believe my family never knew the family of Tim Dedmon, who also grew up in the Chattanooga area. It has been exciting finding all the cousins I never knew existed. I have not only got to know Tim, but also his brother, Wayne and Sarah the daughter of Wayne. I met Sarah on Facebook, while searching for family members. At the time she was in school at Faulkner University in Montgomery, Alabama. She has since graduated and attended the worship services several times at Ooltewah, where I now preach. Jane and I, along with other church members, including my nephew Brian Dedmon and his family have shared several meals with her. Tim is doing a great service with his DNA research which I feature in this issue of the DEDMON CONNECTION. I encourage all to become familiar with his work. Recently, my nephew Brian, ran across a cousin in Dalton, who works for the Sheriff's Department. The cousin who, saw the name Dedmon on Brian's highway patrol uniform, told him that his mother was a Dedmon. When Brian brought me the information, I realized she was Tim Dedmon's sister.

If nothing else has been accomplished, I believe this project has brought the family closer together. I still find it rather amazing at the number of “relatives” I find that do not know their ancestors past their grandparents and some do not even know the grandparents. I can relate though, because I was over 50 years old before I knew anyone beyond my grandparents. Of course, the sad part is I never asked. I have often wished I had become interested in this before my grandmother passed away. She knew “first hand” so many of my ancestors on both sides of the family. Mother was a tremendous help in giving me so many names. Even when I thought I had received all the information she had, I could mention a name and she would add dozens to it.

Another interesting part of the research is finding those whom I have known, but did not know they were kin. Included in this group are the Thomas Broome family, the Crane family, John Wagner (our treasurer at the Bremen church where I preached) and Alan Wells. I am sure there are others as my extended family is quite large and growing. I have dozens of Dedmon friends on Facebook, that I have never met and don't know how they are attached to the family tree. In time I trust the information will be available and I will pass it on.

My cousin, Tim Dedmon, sent me a copy of Edmond Deadman's will. As most wills, it contains very important family information. -Leroy

Edmond Deadman's 1813 Rowan County Will

In the name of God, Amen. I Edmond Dedmon of the state of North Carolina and County of Rowan being weak in body but of perfect mind and memory thanks be given to God and calling to mind the mortality of my body, knowing that it is appointed for all men once to die and after death the judgement, do make and ordain this my last will and Testament. Principally and first of all I give and recommend my soul into the hands of Almighty God that gave it and my body to the Earth to be buried in a decent Christian like manner, at the discretion of my friends and Executors, nothing doubting but at the General Resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God, and astounding (?) such worldly estate, wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me with in this life, I devise and dispose of the same in manner and form as follows

1st - I will that all my just debts and funeral charges be paid by my Executors.

2nd - I will and bequeath unto my beloved wife Elizabeth Deadmon as much of the household goods and kitchen furniture as she shall think proper to set apart out of my estate at my death for her support, and also she is to have out of my stock of horses, cattle, hogs, sheep, and farming utensils as far as may be necessary for her use and support and further she is to have all the ready money in hand (if any) at my death, and also I will unto her my Negro fellow Joe during her natural life, and after her death the right of said Negro is to devolve (?) on my son Elijah Deadman. Which above mentioned goods, cash, and property I will unto my wife above named, for and during the term of her natural life and no longer, and after her decease, what remains of the same - the Negro excepted - to be sold at publick sale, and the money arising from such sale to be equally divided among my five daughters hereafter mentioned. And further it is my will and desire that all the rest of my personal estate (exclusive of what my wife shall set apart for herself as above mentioned) after my death be sold at publick sale and the profits arising from the sale and all money due to my estate at my death be equally divided among my five daughters Namely Elenor Poore, Elizabeth Hainline, Temperance Cross (?), Comfort Spriggs, and Rebecca Cavender, which money is to be paid to my above mentioned daughters as soon as may be convenient after the money is collected on their making application for the same which money I will to them, their heirs or assigns forever.

I will unto my son William Deadman the tract of land whereon I now live, said to contain two hundred and nine acres and a quarter, be the same more or less, reserving unto my wife the mansion house and other buildings with as much of the plantation as she can cultivate towards raising a support. Which privilege I grant unto her for the term of her lifetime if she chuses to accept of the same, which land and premises together with all the improvements and advantages of every kind thereunto belonging, I will unto him, his heirs and assigns forever.

I will unto my son Elijah Deadman the aforementioned Negro man named Joe, and the right of said Negro man to descend unto him after my wife's death (as afore mentioned) and not until then. Which Negro man I will unto him his heirs and assigns forever.

And I do hereby ordain, constitute and affirm my son William Deadman together with my son-in-law Jacob Hainline executors of this my last will and testament, revoking and disannulling all former wills and bequeath by me made, either in writing or in a verbal manner, ratifying this and no other to be my last will and testament in writing which I have hereunto set my hand and seal this sixteenth day of July one thousand eight hundred eight.

Signed sealed published and pronounced in the presence of William (his mark X) Sane (?)
Jacob (his mark X) Baker
Signed
Edmond (his mark ED) Deadman

NB the following words } the Negro escaped, interline(?) before sign.

Since most lists of the children of Edmond contains the name "Poose" and it is not in the will, I sent the following email to Tim. "Thanks Tim. Very interesting.... Was there ever any info on the child of Edmond named "Poose"... kinda strange nickname unless is papoose....Leroy

To which he replied: "I have seen that name thrown around, but I have yet to see exactly where it fits into the family. I have attached a copy of Edmond's will and he only mentions two sons Elijah and William. I think someone may have added Poose or Posey trying to attach someone to the family. -Tim

THE BRICK WALL

I have discovered at least five major Deadman branches that we have not been able to connect. If you have information on any of the Deadman family branches, please submit.

The following email from Tim Dedmon, the project manager of the Debenham Surname DNA project sent me the following email. While some of the results may be disturbing, it does in fact answer some of the "Brick Wall" questions that have plagued us for several years. One thing is certain "people are human" and our actions do in fact affect generations to come. I know in our family we have "half cousins" and "step cousins", but we are still family. The only grandfather I really ever knew was my mother's step father and not my real grandfather... he still was. Thank you Tim for the great work you are doing. -Leroy

Leroy, I am sending you some information that you asked for about our Debenham Surname DNA Project: <http://www.familytreedna.com/public/debenham> that I started in 2010 in hopes it will spark some interest within our family and grow our membership. To join our project will you need to take a 37 marker Y-DNA test with FamilyTreeDNA, the worlds first and largest genealogical DNA company in the world. Presently the test costs $149. Taking the test is very simple, you can view a video about taking the test by doing a search on the internet : "How To Take A Family Tree DNA Test-You Tube" We encourage females to join our project by having a male relative with the Deadman/Dedmon etc last name take the 37 marker Y-DNA test.

Y-DNA is passed from father to son from generation to generation without change except for mutations. Right now we have eleven members and five family lineages that came from a little Hamlet in the town of Deben, England (Debenham). At this time we have two Deadman lines going back to Debenham, their members tested I1 and I1d on the Haplogroup tree. Meaning they had the same father but it was about four thousand years ago. The I1 members test results fell on the Anglo-Saxon side of the I1 Haplogroup tree and we are calling this group the Anglo-Saxon Deadman Line. The I1d members test results fell on the Viking side of the I1 Haplogroup Tree with the I1d members coming mostly from Norway and we are calling this group the Norman Viking Deadman Line. It is a very exciting project. Some of the things we have accomplished/confirmed thru our projects Y-DNA testing in the three years:

(1) We have confirmed two Debenham surname families that were thought to be from different lines but were from the same family in the Sapiston-Redgrave Line. (2) We have confirmed that John Dedman born 1778 in Rutherford County, North Carolina and died January 30, 1860 in Smith County, Tennessee and married to Susan Hunt was not the son of Mark Dedmon (Revolutionary Soldier). We believe John was taken in at a young age by Mark Dedmon's family and later given his last name. The descendents of John will be put in the John Dedman Line of our project. (3) We have confirmed Seneca Dedmon's father was Isaac Dennett Manley, and Seneca's descendents will be put in the Seneca Dedmon Line of our project. (4) The most gratifying thing for me in the three years was talking a Dedmond family member into joining our project with the help of Von Hamrick. We were hoping that he might be the link to solving the Jamie White story. As it turned out, he was not a Dedmond, while his father was fighting in World War II his mother had relations with someone else, and with the test results and family information we were able to find his real father. After the shock and hurt, he later sent me a very nice e-mail thanking me for adding the final piece to the puzzle of his life and that he had legally changed his last name. I don't know if Von ever received that e-mail, thank you, Von.

Some of the things we hope to accomplish in the future is to confirm the Norman Viking Deadman Line by finding a Deadman family in England that matches their DNA. About the time this line came to America in 1674 and settled in Patapsco, Baltimore County, Maryland there was a Jonathan Tipton born in 1657 and died January 21, 1757 in Baltimore County, Maryland. The DNA tests results confirm the two families had a common ancestor around/before this time. A branch of the Norman Viking Deadman Line are all Tiptons or all of the Tipton descendents from Jonathan Tipton are Deadman's. The truth is better than not knowing. Hopefully we will be able to find the family of John Dedman b 1778 in Rutherford County, North Carolina. I'm searching for a couple of quality Debenham Surname DNA Project members that are interested in DNA research to be co-administrators of the Project and carry on the research that has been started. It would be great to have a project member for each of the variant surnames from the Debenham lineage. We are currently looking for Debnam Surname project members,

Christopher Dedmon Line project members. I have seen the DNA results of a Christopher Dedmon family member and they do not match the DNA of the Norman Viking Deadman Line or the Anglo-Saxon Deadman Line. There are two brothers that would prove or disprove the Jamie White story if we could get either one of them to join our project, Jim Dedmond b 1952 who lives in Jacksonville, North Carolina and Bill Dedmond b 1953 who lives in Washington, DC. If either one of them would contact me at my e-mail address tdedmon@epbfi.com I will pay for their DNA test with funds from our projects general fund. I am hoping as we grow the different surnames tests will start matching each other. If you look in the news section of our website you will find the Kit#'s of our members and their father to son lineage. Please consider giving a financial gift to the general fund of our project at the bottom of our website, the money will be used to help with the cost of the tests for new members who would not otherwise join our project. If I can help or answer any questions please e-mail me. -Tim

I sent Tim an email inquiring more into the Tipton and if we knew when and where this took place. He replied with the following.

As for the Tipton situation we have no idea who the mother was when we had the same father, if we did it would be easy. Y-DNA is passed only from father to son, although genealogical DNA testing is in its infancy stages, maybe one day we will be able to pinpoint which generation it may have happened in. Right now all we have is percentages. I'm going to list a generation with the percentage that our common ancestor with the Tipton family happened within this time frame. Keep in mind that it was eleven generations back when John Deadman b 1632 came to America with his two sons in 1674: Four Generations - 5.21%, Seven Generations- 32.27%, Eight Generations - 44.17%, Nine Generations - 55.66%, Ten Generations - 65.96%, Eleven Generations - 74.67%, Twelve Generations- 81.66%, Fourteen Generations - 91.06%, Sixteen Generations - 95.98%, Twenty Generations - 99.33%, Twenty four Generations - 99.91%.

At least we know more than we did and maybe someday we will know even more. Of course if you go back far enough we will all have a common ancestor. If we don't catch him in Noah, we still have Adam. Thanks Tim....

The opening article on volume 79 may be one of the best that you have written in my opinion. I am not sure I had heard the story of granddaddy quitting smoking. I knew that he had smoked but don't think I had heard that. And as far as I know, (Name omitted) is the only grandchild that uses/used tobacco (not sure if he still does, but I thought he used smokeless for a while). Oh I am sure all of us tried it but thank goodness we put it down. Hate that stuff. The story of the remodeling brought back lots of memories. I "helped" do all that stuff. Although I was very young so I imagine I was more in the way but I really did learn a lot from both of them. I did not get grandmother's green thumb but I did get her love of gardening and granddaddy taught me so much about home repairs. Anyway, nice work. -Ken (Price)

Ken is the oldest child of my sister Carolyn and Claude Price. He spent most of his "growing up" years here in the Valley. I have encouraged him to submit some "Down Memory Lane" articles.

Leroy, love the story about your daughter, Gwen's birth in Volume 78 and wonderful story about your parents in Volume 79 Under Brick-Wall - 1st email from Dedmon@yahoogroups.com. I was looking in my FTM genealogy program notes and have a notation for Robert Taliaferro >>> "Colonial VA and Their MD Relatives by Norma TUCKER page 1 - 116 TUCKER Family" <<I'm not sure what it means but maybe something there that would be helpful - not being my line I didn't pursue. I am here! I am still kicking!
My Mom is not doing well. We have her in a nursing home, and hope she will someday get to return home. How are you???? I hope you and your family are well.

It was good hearing from Carole again. She was the proofreader for the newsletter, but health and family issues caused her to have to give it up. I now depend heavily on my nephew, Ken Price and Cousin John Henson for that important task.

MORE ON SENECA DEDMON

One of the "mysteries" that has hovered over all of the family researchers has been Seneca Dedmon. He was the first Dedmon to show up in the Georgia census and we have searched for many years to find his father. Through the DNA project, and some help from one of his descendents, much information has been learned. I ran a article in a recent newsletter from Tim Dedmon, the administrator of the DNA project, concerning Seneca. As has been the case with other elusive ancestors, his father was not a Dedmon. Now that we know his father was Isaac Manley, we are looking for the mother of Seneca Dedmon. Tim sent me this information to add to our data.

Leroy, We believe Polly Deadman's full name was Mary Polly Deadman, from Census records she was born between 1776 to 1780. There is nothing written showing Mary and Polly together as being the mother of Seneca Dedmon. In Isaac Dennett Manley's will he states the mother of Seneca and Evalina Deadman is Polly Deadman. We know that Evalina b 1802 was raised by Isaac Freeland and his wife Mary and Evalina went by the Freeland last name and later married a Henry Watkins. I did not see a marriage record of Isaac Freeland and Mary, but we know they had their first son John in 1803. Family information from a bible had been passed down in Seneca's family stating the mother of Seneca was Mary Freeland. Isaac Freeland died in 1818 in Habersham County, Georgia and Mary Freeland appears in the 1820 Habersham County Census with the children. Mary An Freeland appears in the 1830 Habersham County, Georgia Census with her son Seneca Dedmon living next door to her. This is why we believe Polly Deadman and Mary Freeland are the same person, Mary Polly Deadman Freeland. Maybe Polly Deadman was a native American, or a cousin of Rachel Rebecca Deadman, maybe she was a widow of a Revolutionary soldier or maybe she was married to or widowed from the elusive Poose or Posey Deadman. - Tim

In addition to her academic studies, she was very athletic, playing basketball and tennis. She continued playing basketball after school and her team won an Industrial League Championship in High Point.

After graduating high school, she worked in the office of a local textile mill. Good bye Mother “Miss Ruby”, we will miss you. In lieu of flowers, please send memorials to the First United Methodist Church of High Point, High Point, NC

One of the things I have noticed in doing family research is the names that so many family members share. My mother’s name was also Ruby Dedmon and I had an uncle named Paul Dedmon. I have also discovered another Gordon Lee Dedmon, which was my father’s name and a Gary Dedmon, which is also my son’s name.... and yes, there is at least another Leroy Dedmon.
